TOM Cruise, Nicole Kidman and James and Jodie Packer are on the guest list invited to an exclusive dinner for model Naomi Campbell's Melbourne visit.

In what is shaping up to be the social event of the year, the Metropol development on the site of the historic St Kilda railway station, will be transformed into a Japanese-style hall lit by hundreds of candles.

A Who's Who of the fashion and television industries including designers Nicole Zimmermann, Karen Walker and Alannah Hill, Alex Dimitriades and Neighbours star Krista Vandy are also expected to attend the glittering bash on Friday.

The world-renowned beauty, who recently posed for American Playboy, forged ties with the Packers when she dated Damien Aspinall, who is one of James's closest friends.

Campbell and 100 guests will feast on an Italian banquet created for her by one of Melbourne's favorite celebrity haunts, Caffe E Cucina.

The Chapel St restaurant's famous calamari will be served, followed by three different pastas, tiramisu and tropical fruits.

Food will be washed down by vodka fashion martinis but don't expect to see an intoxicated Campbell stumbling down Fitzroy St in the early hours of the morning.

The word around town is that Campbell won't be drinking very much.

Which is probably a good thing since she'll be strutting her stuff on the catwalk on Saturday night as star attraction in the Australian Designer Collections parade at the Crown Entertainment complex.

Campbell flies into Sydney on Tuesday with her manager and a personal bodyguard to launch her new fragrance, Naomi Campbell.

Strutting: Naomi Campbell will hit the catwalk next Saturday.
